

QUALITY & LEAN THINKING

QNET Presents:

The People Side of Lean

Friday, April 22 – 7:30 to 9:00 a.m.

All too often, the primary focus in the implementation of Lean is on getting the right training and not preparing the company and its people to deal with the many issues created by the changes required by a lean organization. This seminar will focus on how, with some thoughtful planning, you can avoid failure and make a quality implementation of your lean initiative.

Presenter: Graham Moore, Manufacturing Manager, Transcontinental LGM Graphics

A Professional Engineer with a degree in Production Engineering, Graham has over 20 years management experience in a broad range of industries and a background in Industrial Engineering. He has held various management positions from President and CEO of a sheet metal fabrication company to a variety of senior management positions with larger companies such as Ford New Holland and Boeing.

As Director of Operations for Dixon Bayco, he prepared for and initiated their move to Lean Thinking. He also led the Company to be a founder member of the Manitoba Consortium for Manufacturing Excellence. Graham is now applying his considerable experience in changing both the culture and the processes of companies to his present company, Transcontinental-LGM Graphics.
